Lifecare appoints CEO

The board of directors of Lifecare has appointed Joacim Holter as CEO for Lifecare with immediate effect. Holter has been a member of the Lifecare BoD since 2011 and was the Chairman of the BoD from 2012 to 2016.

Holter has solid experience from leading international companies from the R&D stage to a commercial operation. Since 2015 he has been MD and Chairman of the Swiss company Osmotex AG (www.osmotex.ch) and prior to this he was practicing as attorney at law with his own practice in his hometown Bergen. He will combine his responsibility as MD of Osmotex AG and CEO at Lifecare until further notice.

Holter will step aside as member of Lifecare BoD as soon as a replacement is appointed at an extraordinary general assembly. Holter will take seat as the Lifecare representative in Digital Diagnostics AG, a company Lifecare has a 25% ownership in.

“The BoD is very pleased to have found a solution with Joacim Holter as the CEO. Our partnership with Digital Diagnostic AG and the next phase with our own products will require a strong drive, solid negotiation skills in an international context and ability to execute quickly. Knowing Lifecare from the inside, Joacim is well placed to navigate all the opportunities we have ahead of us, says Christian Hysing Dahl, Chairman of the board of Lifecare.
